81%

Understanding Your Score: Your assessment score reflects your readiness. Higher percentages indicate alignment with more traditional approaches. Lower percentages suggest less traditional approaches. Neither is inherently better or worse; they simply reflect different expectations.

- The most important consideration is how your assessment aligns with your own values and how you are married to or discerning marriage with.
- The closer the percentage (with your spouse), overall, the more aligned you are likely to be.

Understanding These Gender-Specific Comparisons

These statistics compare your results specifically with other men. Higher or lower scores indicate different approaches to marriage, not better or worse ones. The most important consideration is how your assessment compares with your spouse or future spouse, as closer percentages typically indicate better alignment in expectations.

Your Compatibility Profile

Based on your psychographic profile, we've identified the types of people you'd likely be most compatible with. Closer alignment in expectations suggests better compatibility, but isn't mandatory for a successful relationship.
